A NOTE FROM OUR TEAM

As the COVID-19 pandemic lingered throughout 2022, Colorado, among the rest of the U.S., experienced a marked and concerning drop in routine vaccination rates. In response to this decrease, Immunize Colorado spent the year working across our focus areas to raise awareness for and educate providers and the public on the importance of vaccination, advance policies that support Colorado's immunization infrastructure and oppose those that do not, fight the growing volume and impact of vaccine misinformation on- and offline, and grow programs and initiatives that increase access to and demand for vaccines, especially in underserved communities. We are proud to have partnered with a wide range of federal, state, and local organizations, as well as savvy trusted community messengers, to develop and champion innovative strategies for vaccine delivery.

This report is a snapshot of Immunize Colorado's work and impact in 2022. As we look to the year ahead, we remain committed to supporting partners across public health and healthcare to address the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic and the decrease in routine vaccination rates; finding strategic solutions to reach underserved communities; fostering confidence in and access to all vaccines for all Coloradans; and ultimately advancing our mission to protect Colorado families, schools and communities from vaccine-preventable diseases. And so our work continues...
